One-night-only Art Festival—Enjoy It All Night Long!
Roppongi Art Night 2026
New program details below

Enjoy a wide array of offerings until dawn—from club lounges and art events in the Seijoki-dori pedestrian zone to exclusive gourmet treats!
Safe late-night transportation support is also available.

From sunset to dawn, Roppongi in its entirety will become a massive art space for Roppongi Art Night 2026. This year, the 15th holding of the event, sees the highly anticipated return of the popular all-night format for the first time in three years.

A major highlight this year is the RAN Focus—a showcase of top-tier French art programs curated by José-Manuel Gonçalvès, former Artistic Director of CENTQUATRE-PARIS, in partnership with the Embassy of France in Japan / Institut français du Japon. In addition, approximately 60 programs—spanning contemporary art, design, music, film, and performance—will be presented throughout Roppongi, featuring contributions from artists around the globe. Highlights include an audiovisual live performance hosted in a rented-out cinema and exclusive, one-night-only club lounges. Museums, commercial complexes, and even familiar public spaces will be reimagined as extraordinary, surprise-filled stages.

Furthermore, the event will feature 6Fes 2026—an art event on Seijoki-dori, which will be converted into a pedestrian zone for the event, where in addition to the art performances, the street will also host a tempting night food market.

Local restaurants and cafés will extend their operating hours, offering exclusive, one-night-only gourmet options and special perks for attendees. Between time spent exploring the art, visitors can fully engage their senses through food and strolls around the neighborhood.

To assist with late-night travel and getting home after the last trains have departed, the event will introduce a new transportation initiative: GO Economy, a ride-hailing service provided by GO—Japan's No. 1 taxi app[*1].

Additionally, an AI powered digital stamp rally will further encourage visitors to stroll the district, offering a wealth of activities to enjoy as you explore Roppongi throughout the night. Get ready for a night of pure excitement that engages all five senses! Everything you need to know to make the most of this exhilarating, sensory-rich experience is contained here.

Read on and discover a wide array of content including safe late-night transportation options!

*1: Based on Sensor Tower data | Total downloads of taxi-hailing apps in Japan (combined figures for App Store and Google Play). Research period: October 1, 2020 – September 30, 2026.

*The GO Economy service is primarily available within the 23 wards of Tokyo. Please check the website or the GO app for further details.

Tohu va bohu

Video screening

Tohu va bohu

At the end of August, a village in the Alpes-de-Haute-Provence is struck by an outbreak of “dancing plague,” sending humans and animals into a collective trance. Inspired by the dancing plague recorded in Strasbourg in 1518 and Jean Giono’s 1932 short story Le prélude de Pan, Tohu va bohu is a hybrid animated film conceived as an ecological fable. Combining drawings, 3D modeling, live-action footage, and paper-puppet animation, the work brings together different visual worlds, from Flemish painting and the Provençal countryside to scenes of collective trance. Without revealing the cause of the mysterious outbreak, the film depicts an interspecies frenzy in which humans and animals are swept together into an increasingly chaotic dance.

- Dates: Sunday, November 1, 3:00–4:00
- Venue: Roppongi Hills Arena

Lou Le Forban
Born in 1997 in Marseille, Lou Le Forban studied at the École des Beaux-Arts in Paris, the Kunstakademie Düsseldorf, and Le Fresnoy in Tourcoing. Her work centers on video, painting, and textiles, composed like collages that bring together different imaginations, from historical anecdotes to folk tales. Her work has been exhibited at La Villette, FRAC Île-de-France, Institut Français Madrid, Musée National de Cluny, Argos Center Brussels, Transpalette Bourges, and universities in Angers and Rennes.

One Thousand and One Attempts to Be an Ocean

Video screening

One Thousand and One Attempts to Be an Ocean

One Thousand and One Attempts to Be an Ocean is a video work composed of “satisfying videos”—short, repetitive clips widely circulated online for their soothing and visually pleasing effects. Yuyan Wang collects and reassembles these found images, creating a continuous flow of waves, movements, and recurring patterns. Through rapid repetition and rhythmic editing, the images gradually lose their original context and transform into an abstract, hypnotic sequence reminiscent of trance and minimal music. Evoking the sensation of being immersed in an endless ocean of images, the work reflects on our desire to synchronize with the rhythms of our digital environment, while exploring the overwhelming circulation and accumulation of images in today’s information society.

- Dates: Sunday, November 1, 3:00–4:00
- Venue: Roppongi Hills Arena

Yuyan Wang
Yuyan Wang, born in China and based in Paris, is a filmmaker and video artist. Her work explores recycled materials from image production and their transformation within digital frameworks. Through editing, she deconstructs and recontextualizes materials, disrupting conventional modes of perception and transforming them into immersive sensory experiences. Her work has been presented at Tate Modern, Centre Pompidou, Palais de Tokyo, UCCA Beijing, and numerous international film and media art festivals.

Le Fresnoy Video Special Feature: Momoko Seto
Planet A

Video screening

Planet A depicts a dried-out world where the intensive cultivation of cotton for economic gain has caused widespread desertification. Vast stretches of land are transformed into a saline desert, where strange trees made of salt emerge from the parched ground. Inspired by the ecological disaster of the Aral Sea, which dramatically shrank as rivers feeding it were diverted for large-scale irrigation, the work explores the consequences of human intervention in the natural environment. Through striking images of salt, water, and cotton, Seto transforms a real environmental crisis into the landscape of an imaginary planet, revealing a world in which the pursuit of economic growth has profoundly altered the ecosystem.

Planet A

● Dates: Sunday, November 1, 3:00–4:00
● Venue: Roppongi Hills Arena

Momoko Seto
Born in Tokyo, Momoko Seto studied at Le Fresnoy – Studio National des Arts Contemporains in France before working as a director at the National Centre for Scientific Research (CNRS). Her highly innovative work deals with ecology and environmental issues, employing striking styles using macro lenses, slow motion, and time-lapse photography to issue a wake-up call for the post–climate change future. In 2021, she received the Cristal du CNRS, the highest distinction for a scientific director. She directed the PLANET series, including Planet A, which won the Audi Short Film Award at the 2015 Berlinale. Her first feature film, Dandelion's Odyssey (2022), won the Fondation Gan pour le Cinéma award and received the FIPRESCI Award at Cannes 2025.

Installation

The work explores the interplay between being and hiding. Ten “stones” of identical shape, yet made from different materials, are arranged in a circle intersected by two-sided mirrors.
As these doppelgängers lie next to one another, the function of the mirrored glass depends on the viewer’s position: it may appear either as a reflective surface or as a transparent pane, confronting one stone with its double. The glass can conceal part of one object while simultaneously completing it through the mirrored reflection of the corresponding part of the other.
Depending on the angle from which it is viewed, the work reveals different versions of reality, questioning both our perceptual habits and fundamental physical laws. It creates a continuum of parallel forms of being while simultaneously exposing the limits of our perception.
The viewer is always part of the very system they seek to observe, inevitably circling back to its inherent limitations.
Rather than arriving at a final conclusion about reality, the work unfolds multiple possibilities for understanding it, without ever allowing one to escape this circulus in probando.

Roppongi Night Parade of a Hundred Shadows
(Work-in-progress performance)

Other

Roppongi — the night a hundred shadows begin to walk.
We call the things a city forgets "machiboke": the ones left waiting. Places that have served their purpose, tools no longer used, time gone by. They simply remain, quietly saying, "I am still here." Wearing earphones, audiences walk through Roppongi on Halloween night. They stop, turn around, look for someone. Is what they hear the sound of this place now, or of a hundred years ago? As that line blurs, the layers sleeping beneath the familiar streets begin to rise. And before you know it, you too may have joined the night parade. Conceived and with the audio experience designed by ExMetaClub, with script and performance contributions by daisydoze, this experimental project is presented as a work in progress.

- Dates: Saturday, October 31, 17:00–22:30 (Last entry)
- Venue: Piramide Building (Meeting point & registration)
- Participation Fee: 1,000 yen (Max. 8 people per session; advance reservation required, with capacity limits enforced every 10 minutes)
  Asoview: https://evt.asoview.com/roppongiartnight2026
  *Tickets go on sale Friday, October 23, at 12:00.
- What to Bring: Your own smartphone and earphones (please ensure your device is fully charged).
  Recommended browser: iOS (Safari) / Android (Chrome)
- Attire & Luggage: As the experience involves walking around the area and navigating stairs, please wear comfortable clothing and footwear, and keep your luggage to a minimum.
- Arrival Time: Please arrive at the meeting point 10 minutes before your scheduled start time (for registration and instructions on the experience).

(TOHO Cinemas Program)
Li Yi-fan
What Is Your Favorite Primitive

Video screening

Li Yi-fan's works explore how the evolution of image-making tools relates to the formation of image politics. In an age where the boundaries between image, identity, and information are constantly shifting, Li poses questions about how new technologies transform perception, subjectivity, and the possible futures of human expression.
What Is Your Favorite Primitive (2023) takes the form of a satirical tech keynote presentation in which a protagonist grapples with the ethical and societal questions embedded in software tools designed for image production. Through this work, Li reflects on how images reshape modes of communication and how emojis might transmit emotional meanings that surpass individual perception. At its core, the piece speculates on whether image technologies might one day construct a new politics of life and death.

- Dates: Sunday, November 1, 00:00–0:50 and 5:00–5:50
- Venue: TOHO Cinemas Roppongi Hills

① Sunday, November 1, 1:10 ~
tamanaramen (DANCE IS BREATHING)

This work is an audiovisual performance centered on dance, breath, and the ever-changing body. Viewing the body as a "vessel where memories and emotions temporarily reside"—and drawing upon the philosophy of universal flux—the piece explores the boundaries between that which transforms and that which endures. It weaves together organic, fluid imagery—reminiscent of blooming and withering plants—with captured fragments of European urban landscapes, all set to a soundscape that traverses ambient, IDM, and techno genres. Through repetitive beats and dance, the performance stirs the audience's perception and physical senses, giving rise to an audiovisual ritual for the "living, breathing body"—a space where personal memory and collective ecstasy converge.

② Sunday, November 1, 2:00 ~
YOSHIROTTEN (Contact)

This performance features an audiovisual, experimental DJ set—an expansion of the works to be unveiled at the YOSHIROTTEN: Communication with the Beyond / BEYONDEARTH exhibition, opening October 30 at TOKYO NODE in Toranomon Hills. Yusuke Kasai, from the creative collective YAR, will handle the VJing. From Roppongi Hills to TOKYO NODE, this 60-minute journey serves as a transmission to the cosmos. We invite you to simply surrender yourself to the sounds and visuals.

③ Sunday, November 1, 3:20 ~
Le Makeup × Reiji Saito (The Crying Xpress)
Le Makeup: Singer / producer. Began writing music around 2016, and has since released music through various labels in Japan and abroad. Has collaborated with artists including Dove, Tohji, gummyboy, Satoko Shibata, and JUMADIBA, while also working extensively as a producer and remixer. Released the album The Crying Xpress on April 29, 2026.
Reiji Saito: Video artist. Creating video works since 2008, using a vast archive of photographs and videos from daily life. Fragmented and abstracted, these images are separated from their original information; yet, when pieced together into a work—one that evokes both painting and sculpture—time itself emerges in a state of heightened purity.

④ Sunday, November 1, 4:10 ~
Cwondo × JACKSON kaki
Cwondo: Cwondo is the solo project of Taisei Kondo, who is also active as the guitarist and vocalist of No Buses and in the band unit Oni with uku kasai. He composes music at home and outdoors. He released "Memoride 1" in December 2024 and "Memoride 2" in November 2025.

JACKSON kaki: Born in Shizuoka Prefecture in 1996. Working across multimedia formats including 3DCG, video, performance, installation, and sound, he translates the relationship between the body and technology into a dislocating sensation. As a VJ, he collaborates with domestic artists such as MONDO GROSSO and EY ∃, as well as international artists like Two Shell and Kode9, actively performing primarily in the club scene.

Having been immersed in classical music from a young age, she discovered club music while attending the Tokyo University of Foreign Studies and began her professional DJ career in 2008. Over the past four years, she has explored a lo-fi sonic palette characterized by distorted textures, bubbling synth sounds, and a simmering, persistent energy. Her signature style incorporates understated yet striking vocal samples layered over acid basslines, lending her work a raw, edgy aesthetic. Her time spent in London in 2010 fostered a deep affinity for the UK underground bass scene—an influence that resonates throughout much of her music. Furthermore, as a classically trained pianist, she enjoys playing the piano on a daily basis.

Video screening

Traversing diverse forms of moving images—from short and feature films to documentaries and multi-channel video installations—Jakrawal Nilthamrong (b. 1977 in Lopburi, Thailand) has created a singular body of work that explores the invisible forces governing human experience. His works interlace Buddhist and ecological concepts with sci-fi and surrealist imagery. REC END 3.0 K-us

Installation

REC END 3.0 K-us is an interactive installation that transforms discarded home appliances into radio-controlled vehicles. These relics of daily life—such as washing machines and rice cookers, once essential to urban living—are granted new life and mobility. Through the surreal and humorous spectacle of household appliances moving about the space, the work invites reflection on our society of excessive consumption and the waste generated by modern technology. While contemporary appliances offer convenience and provide a means for self-expression through their diverse designs and functions, they often include superfluous features that do little to truly enhance our daily lives. Even when an appliance appears to be in perfect working order, the fact that it will inevitably break down serves as a reminder that long-lasting does not mean lasting forever.
